

For more information,
please contact:

Chad Tindol
UA System
Office of Risk Management
205.348.5889
ctindol@uasystem.edu

UA Office of Fraternity &
Sorority Life
205.348.2693
OFSL@ua.edu

UA Hazing Hotline
205.348.HALT (4258)

UAB Office of Student Involvement & Leadership
205.934.8020
greeks@uab.edu

To report hazing at UAB:
hazing@uab.edu

UAH Office of Housing & Greek Life
256.824.6108
housing@uah.edu

UAH 24-Hour Hotline
256.824.STOP

 Follow us on Twitter

 Visit our website

Don't Just Stand By. . .

2016 saw an explosion of interest in Title IX, the federal law that prohibits sex discrimination at universities. The same law that opened the school doors and playing fields to all genders is now working to reduce sexual violence on college campuses. Interest has come from student-led advocacy, the White House, Congress, federal agencies, and has been a cover story of Time and other magazines. Our campuses are determined to protect our students from assault and to punish and/or criminally prosecute those who cross the line.

One of the concepts to receive well-deserved attention in the fight against sexual assault is the role of the “bystander.” Psychologists long ago noted what they call the “bystander effect.” That is – humans will sometimes stand by while something terrible occurs, hoping (or falsely trusting) that someone else will take care of the problem.

Many programs now exist to convert bystanders from an idle “effect” into an active “intervention.” These programs can help your members be active interveners to protect your members, your organization, and your guests. Basically, the steps are:

Resources for Title IX and Bystander Intervention

UA Title IX Website

UA Women and Gender Resource Center

UAB Title IX Website

UAB Guide for Victims of Sexual Assault

UAB Women's Counseling Center

UAH Title IX Website

UAH Student Resources

National Sexual Violence Resource Center